The Navajo County Historical Society was formed in 1969 and it included the whole county. With the new Navajo County Complex being completed in 1976, the Navajo County Historical Society took up residence in the Navajo County Historic Courthouse, as their headquarters and establishing a museum for visitors to the site.

Today it serves as a museum, official Arizona Office of Tourism information center, community use courtyard, auditorium and hosts the Holbrook Chamber of Commerce offices and operations.

Proceeds from support membership dues, donations and sponsoring contributions for the Historical Society are tax deductible and will be used in helping with many worthy tasks. We appreciate and greatly rely upon all of the generous contributions that we receive to continue to improve and make the Historic Courthouse and museum a better place to visit.
